Final LaGrange Firefighter Released from Hospital

LaGrange, Ga. October 9, 2018 – LaGrange Firefighter Josh Williams is finally coming home today (10/9) after being injured in a Labor Day fire.

Williams is the fourth and final firefighter to recover from the structure fire. Thirty-five percent of his body received burns in this incident.

Williams has been in the hospital since September 3rd.

City Manager Meg Kelsey visited Josh Williams over the weekend

Three other firefighters were also injured including Jonathan Williamson, Pete Trujillo, and Jordan Avera. They continue to recover from their injuries.

Avera starts back to work this week. He began light duty on Monday.
